

A MIDWEST MOMENT

Here in the Midwest
There's a feeling of peacefulness
Clouds forming pictures
Your eyes won't forget

Cornfields at harvest time
The smell of the summer pine
First fall of snowflakes on the ground

Leaves colors' changing
With a strong wind remaining
Reminding the landscape of a chill to come

Showers of spring begin
As winter comes to an end
Echoing summer's humid call

A sense of honest point of view
With simple kindness that reflects an inner truth
A loving spirit fills the air
From people who reach out to show you that they care

Late in the evening
All the crickets are singing
While fireflies bring on
Their glowing charm

Moon up above
Reflecting places we love
For these are the best of Midwest moments.

© October 2004 Ellen Johnson (Long Snows Moon Music – BMI)